

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

Canton Oneco Plans to Attend Sovereign Grand Lodge Meeting in Atlantic City September 18—Spanish War Veterans Encampment—Owls' Committee Report Outing a Great Success.

REBEKAHS.

The picnic of the Rebekah lodge of Noank held this week at Mumford's cove, left nothing in the way of out of door sports to be desired. The members have demonstrated to their perfect satisfaction and that of the brother Odd Fellows who were their guests, that they can arrange athletic stunts with the best of them and as for the chowder—that will be remembered for days. About 100 were in attendance and the first outing of the lodge set a pace which will be hard to excel in future years. This lodge has had one of the most prosperous beginnings with a membership to start with of 35 and almost every meeting sees new candidates. While it is the baby Rebekah lodge, it is a vigorous one and the Noank members are proud of it.

OWLS.

Norwich Nest, No. 1395, held its regular meeting on Tuesday evening and the entertainment committee had the satisfactory report to submit that the banquet outing at the downtown on Sunday last, had been the best ever. In point of finances especially did it turn out to be the record outing the nest has held, even surpassing its returns that of a year ago. About 150

A cement walk is being built at the foot of the terraces, where drain pipe will be placed. A cement floor will be laid in the cellar of the home. Another improvement is to be a cement walk from the annex, through the grape arbor to the main building. The old stone walls that have tumbled down will be removed and fences put in their places.

The Flocking Habit.

While man has been defined as a gregarious animal, Americans seem to have the flocking habit more strongly developed than any other people. Draw multitudes there are private gatherings. This tendency has done much to destroy the home circle as it was once known.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SOCIAL CORNER.

clothing, bathe the temples with cold water, admit plenty of fresh air and apply a hot water bag to the feet. Always plan to have a change of clothing. Give plenty of breathing room. Camphor, ammonia, or smelling salts, may be held under the nose for a few seconds at a time, and the patient exposed to cool air. Cold water may also be dashed into the face.

For Nose Bleed—Roll a piece of soft paper hard and place between the upper lip and gums and in a few minutes the bleeding generally stops.

For Hoarseness—Beat the white of an egg, add the juice of a lemon and sweeten with white sugar, take a teaspoonful at a time. In case of fire, wet a silk handkerchief and lay over the face. It will prevent suffocation from smoke, permit free breathing and exclude smoke from the lungs.

Dislocations—The reduction of a dislocation calls for no immediate haste, and fear less injury is inflicted. If the patient is allowed to await the arrival of a physician who can perform the necessary manipulations, the dislocation will be reduced. Cold wet cloths may be applied, while bathing to relieve pain.

Hiccough—Have the patient draw a deep breath and hold it as long as possible. In severe attacks, apply teaspoonful of mustard in a cup of water, following this dose with copious draughts of water so as to empty the stomach as quickly as possible; also give whites of egg.

For Internal Poison—Induce vomiting by tickle the throat on the inside with finger; give an emetic; such as teaspoonful of mustard in a cup of water, following this dose with copious draughts of water so as to empty the stomach as quickly as possible; also give whites of egg.

For Acids—Muricatic, Oxalic, Sulphuric, Oil of Vitriol, Nitric—Give immediately a solution of baking soda, or magnesia, chalk, lime, soap-soda, raw eggs, milk or sweet oil.

Alkalies—Potash, Lye, Hartshorn, Ammonia—Something acid in nature should be given at once, such as vinegar, lemon juice, hard cider, juice of sour fruit, etc.

Arsenic—Rat Poison, or Paris Green—Give milk, lime water, flour and water or raw eggs. Do not give warm fluids.

Bug Poison—Lead, Salt Peter, Corrosive Sublimite, Sugar of Lead, Blue Vitrol—Give the whites of eggs or milk in large doses.

CRIMSON RAMBLER.

INSPIRING WORDS FROM FRANK.

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folk—I haven't down but am still at the old post with pen in hand, to write "cheer up!" to those in sorrow, sickness or trouble. I sympathize with the unfortunate. May a day soon arrive to fill each and heart with joy. "Look up—not down!"

For the invalid and the convalescent eggs and milk furnish much nutriment and are easily digested.

Raw eggs and milk may be stirred or shaken up and flavored and they make a fine drink. For invalids it may be flavored with nutmeg or orange rind and be sweetened.

Shave (unsweetened) chocolate into a dish, rub smooth in hot water, add sugar instead of egg, add a tablespoonful of sherry wine—add to a glass of milk makes a stimulating drink for an invalid.

A raw egg may be taken with olive oil and grape juice. Put in glass first the grape juice, then the egg and the oil—stir and swallow, and the egg or the oil will not be tasted.

The white of an egg beaten to a froth, with a little sugar and lemon juice added, always proves soothing for a sore throat or good for a cough.

It is most interesting to read all the good and helpful letters in The Social Corner. Some members are misled. They should favor us with a letter once in a while—a few lines would please interested and expectant Cornerites.

I have been pleased to read of the enjoyable times the Sisters have had at the picnic. We may all have the song of the B. S. C. S. written by Married and Happy. May her health be restored and her strength be made equal to every demand put upon it.

MOONSH.

AUNT ABBY'S PARTY.

Dear Editor and all Social Cornerites: I sincerely thank our kind Editor, and all the other members who so kindly contributed and helped to make the lawn party at my home such a grand success. I fully appreciate it, and am most grateful to all. I enjoyed it immensely, and hope I may be able to have another some day.

Maine Lover: Wandering Jew and Agate: I was sure I should see you all at my party, but was sadly disappointed. Have wondered what the matter could be?

Rural Delivery: I trust you got home alright and hope you enjoyed the party. All were very glad to welcome you. Hope to get a letter from you soon.

Biddy and Polly Wintergreen: We missed you very much. Had no one to play the violin.

Married and Happy: Am very glad that you are improving and hope it will be lasting.

Then I shall follow you in your walks, and see the sumptuous lunch spread out on the lawn which will play the violin.

When the time for parting comes I shall feel with you that it is good to be Corner Sisters.

I also feel grateful that you consider me worthy to be counted one of you.

Although not as young as many of you, and unable to get about, I do surely enjoy the many good times you participate in, even if it comes to me second-hand, and after your ardor has cooled off.

These things remind me that mother was right when I protested when a child I should not be helped from the bottom of the dish; and was told I was receiving the best, the most substance, and it was, and is true, for when you write me of your good times, either personally or in the Corner, you omit telling of any unpleasantness or annoyances which may have arisen, and I receive only the good, the best of it. Still I would gladly face unpleasantness and annoyances if I could be about and mingle with others, and all who are shut in would say the same.

All of you, who can, enjoy life while you can, and everyone of us, who like myself, have to look between the rifts in the clouds for rays of sunshine, watch closely lest we lose some of them.

With best wishes for a most happy day to all who are present. Please just drop a thought to Diana in New Hampshire.

I too, would voice my thanks with you to the hostess for bringing us together.

DIANA.

A DYSENTERY CURE.

Dear Editor and Cornerites: I have taken pen in hand many times and laid it down, lacking courage to write, but I like to read the letters which the Sisters write and maybe they think mine not far-fetched.

Dottie: Your use of sweet fern leaves for poison I was glad to know about, and will add that they are a cure for dysentery in its worst forms. Steep the leaves, strain them when strong and take one third of a tumbler every hour or two until relief comes. As this is the time of year when such disease are liable to attack a person, I think it nice to know of a remedy that has been tried and proven effective.

Maine Lover: Yes, I am very sure I would want to clip around any corner. Walking is preferable, though when it means miles—why then we must run the risk I suppose.

To a Crank: I wish to say I tried going without breakfast—by advice of a friend. Now this worked very well for the friend as she did not arise until about nine, but with one who was obliged to get up at an early hour as did I, four or five noon my stomach was in no fit condition to take food. I do think, however, people are apt to eat things which they know are injurious for them, and will not deny themselves of anything their palate may desire.

So sorry I was not able to be present at Aunt Abby's party, but old Sol did not show his face early enough for one to get to the train.
